Owners find conservation easement on their Albany property a light burden to bear

By BETSEY FOSTER

Jim Dearden has harvested timber from his land, built rental property on it, and is in the process of renovating existing structures to begin a small commercial venture -- a bed and breakfast. In the future, he can even sell off a piece of land if he so desires.

He does all this with a conservation easement on the property. Dearden's 36-acre property sits along Route 5 and borders Songo Pond. When he purchased it in July of 1995, the deed came with a conservation easement.

The easement, established by original owners and summer residents Marion and Gilbert Rich, guides future uses of the property regardless of ownership.

The property was owned by The Nature Conservancy. Dearden negotiated directly with the Washington, D.C., office during the purchase.

In his early 20s at the time, he was neither attracted nor discouraged by the easements on the property. He was not impassioned with the property, and that gave him the flexibility to negotiate with The Nature Conservancy for nearly a year before purchasing it.

The terms of the easement specified limits for timber harvesting and defined subdivision of the land, as well as the number of dwellings permitted.

Dearden negotiated the terms and came away with the property and an easement acceptable to both him and The Nature Conservancy.

The 36 acres came with a house, a caretaker's cottage in disrepair and a barn in not much better condition, with an ell that ran between it and the house.

The house was seasonal, with plumbing running on the outside walls of the structure. Everything was grown in with trees.

The plan was to harvest some timber, renovate the caretaker's cottage and rent it as income property, and restore and refurbish the original house to be a bed and breakfast with the barn as private living space.

"I guess I was kind of young and foolish, as my grand plan was to have everything renovated and comfortable by November of that year," said Dearden.

While making significant progress over three years, he is still working on his goal.

Mahoosuc Land Trust's role

After the sale of the property the Mahoosuc Land Trust took over the role of overseer of the easement.

"Our job," said MLT president Ken Bohr of Bethel, "was to see that the terms of the easement were met."

Bohr and at-that-time MLT executive director Marcel Polak met

Lower Main St. perk-up in the works

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Changes are coming to lower Main Street in Bethel, in the form of two new restaurants and one badly needed architectural facelift.

By summer's end the former Martha's Restaurant building and the center section of the Mountain View Mall could both be back in business as operating restaurants.

Both enterprises are being launched by owners with successful track records.

Keith Blackard and Sara Hebert, of Finish Line Pizza, plan to move their growing business from the Unicorn to Martha's.

The new site will be focused on the younger market, with video games, a rec room -- and no liquor license.

Plans call for up to 35 seats, but most of the business is expected to remain take-out, according to Hebert.

The project, which includes substantial interior renovations, was scheduled to go to the Bethel Planning Board last night (Wednesday) for site plan approval.

If all goes well things could be up and running by Aug. 1.

Across the railroad tracks, at the nearby Mountain View Mall, the tradition of restaurants themed for faraway places will continue.

Jimmy Wai plans to open a 100-seat Chinese restaurant, the Sun

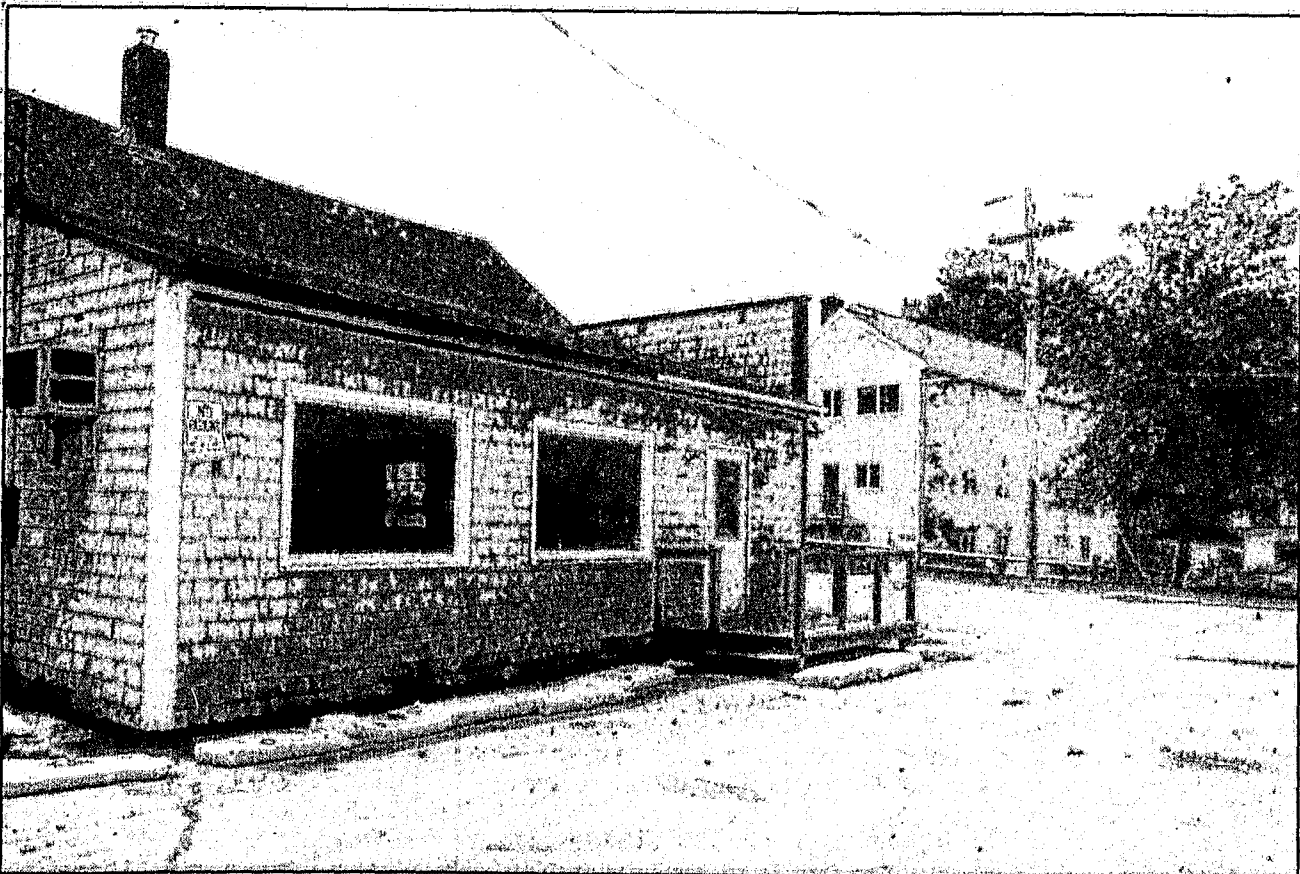

Garden, in the section of the mall building occupied most recently by the Matterhorn Restaurant, and prior to that by Cisco's & Poncho's.

Wai is owner of the Mayflower Chinese Restaurant in South Paris, and he has operated successful restaurants in Augusta, Lewiston and Auburn, according to realtor Bob Laux.

Plans call for the Sun Garden to open by early next month, Laux said.

Just up Main Street from the mall, another -- to put it as kindly as possible -- conspicuous building is slated for a facelift.

LOWER MAIN STREET BLUES--First-time visitors to Bethel village are greeted by two buildings that project urban depression rather than country charm -- the empty storefront of the former Martha's Restaurant, and the bland, three-decker side of the former DiMarco Chiropractic building. But Finish Line Pizza should soon bring lights and activity to Martha's, and businessman Bob Chadbourne is planning an architectural facelift for the exterior of the chiropractic building.

Pathway and bridge still going nowhere

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It's back to the drawing board for the long-awaited multi-purpose bridge over the Androscoggin River, and for the pathway that would connect the bridge to Davis Park and the rest of Bethel village.

The ad hoc Pathway Committee agreed Tuesday evening to ask the project's consultant architect and engineer to draw up plans for the bridge -- so that the town will have plans, and cost estimates, in hand if it applies for additional grants for the two projects.

At this point money was not supposed to have been a problem. Bethel was granted funding for the bridge and walkway in 1994, through the Maine Department of Transportation's Transportation Enhancement Program.

The money was part of a $412,800 package that also included funding for walkways, sidewalks, lighting, and various amenities that would help integrate Bethel Station to the village.

But the town's estimate of the bridge cost at the time of the grant -- $98,210 -- turned out to be far short of the actual money needed.

The most recent bids (for so-called "design-build" contracts) have ranged from $372,500 to $584,204, and that does not include the cost of developing the pathway.

Of the original grant, approximately $300,000 is left for the bridge and pathway, according to Managers from Louisiana. Laborers from Pennsylvania. Welders from Texas and Oklahoma.

They're 300 to 400 strong so far, and there are more on the way. They're the pipeline workers building the Portland Natural Gas Transmission System line. And they're providing a summer boost to many Bethel area businesses.

"Huge" effect

The real estate rental business has been feeling the effects of the preliminary work since November, according to Paula Gillies of Maine Street Realty in Bethel.

Maine Street rents properties in the region from Bryant Pond to Route 26 north in Newry.

Pipeline consultants, engineers and supervisors started arriving in a steady stream around the time of the January ice storm, said Gillies. Now, she said, the impact on the local market is "huge."

The influx is timely, said Gillies. Last year at this time, many rentals were filled by European visitors. But that market has dropped off all over New England. Other openings were left by departing renters associated with the Jordan Grand Hotel project.

"Properties that would have been vacant are filled (by pipeline people)," she said.

All together, estimates Gillies, about one-third of Maine Street's 90 rental properties have been snapped up by pipeline management.

"We're not turning anyone away, but it's becoming slimmer pick-

HAPPY HOURS AT HARRY'S--Area restaurants and lodging places are seeing added business from management and work crews associated with the PNGTS pipeline project. The pay is good, the hours are long, and home is far away

By ALISON ALOISIO

The impact of the pipeliners on Harry Faulkner's Backstage quickly became apparent last Thursday evening. By 5:30 p.m., about two dozen had arrived for an after-work beer.

It was Happy Hour, and the workers were happy to talk about themselves, and their jobs. But -- perhaps displaying a healthy suspicion of newspapers -- they didn't want to use more than a first name or nickname.

Joe, Mark and "Hebert" (pronounced like former New Orleans Saints quarterback Bobby Hebert) are members of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 66 of Pittsburgh.

They work for Welded, the pipe company subcontracted to general contractor Bechtel. They're staying at the River View Resort.

Joe, a pipe loader, had arrived in town the previous weekend -- just in time for a week's worth of rain. "There's fog on the mountains," he said. "I got here Saturday, and I still haven't seen the top."

What he's seen, he likes, because the terrain reminds him of the hills of Pennsylvania. He'd like to see a moose before he leaves, too.

As for the people, Joe said the locals "have treated most of us pretty well."

He has been in the pipeline business since 1981. For 12 years before that, he worked regular construction jobs. Pipeline workers, he said, "are a whole different breed."

They travel the country, and sometimes the world, going from job to job. The jobs may run from a few months to several years.

Said Hebert, who's been doing pipelines since 1975, "You can work together with other guys for five years, then not see them for an-

BUS SERVICE RETURNING

To the Editor:

Pine Tree Transit, a service of Western Maine Transportation Services Inc., will reinstate bus service to the Bethel area beginning Monday, July 6. We are pleased to be able to once again offer this service thanks in part to the support of Bethel residents through monies appropriated for this service at the Bethel Town meeting held on June 10.

We will begin offering low-cost public transportation to the area on Monday, July 6, and will offer weekly bus service on Mondays (with the exception of holidays) each Monday thereafter. This will not only allow Bethel residents to use the service to go into the Norway/South Paris area or the Rumford/Mexico area, but will also allow people along Route 2 from Rumford to Bethel to come into the Bethel area for the day. Initially we will offer service to the Norway/South Paris area on the first, third and fifth Mondays of each month and service to the Rumford/Mexico area on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. The bus is scheduled to be in Bethel at 9:15 a.m. each Monday to begin pickups and people will be returned to Bethel by 1:30 p.m.

Because Pine Tree Transit will be providing door-to-door service for these rides, it is important for persons wanting transportation to provide the customer service personnel with good directions to their homes. The fares range from $1 to $4 per person and more information is available by calling 1-800-339-9687 and speaking with Elaine or Jean.

The staff at Pine Tree Transit looks forward to once again serving the transportation needs of the Bethel area and we urge citizens to take advantage of this service.

TRACK BOOSTERS ASK FOR HELP

To the Editor:

The Telstar Athletic Boosters began work on the construction of a track for Telstar High School and the community of SAD44 on June 10, 1992. On July 27, 1992, Sarah Craig, Carroll Higgins and John Applin went before the SAD44 School Board to ask for approval to begin a fundraising project for the track.

The Athletic Boosters began their fundraising with a bottle drive, several hunter's breakfasts, a toll booth and a Beano. We have had memorial money donated in memory of two local people. It was decided to have a branch of the Telstar Athletic Boosters, and the Telstar Track Boosters, which would handle the fundraising activities and any other pertinent business that deals with the construction of the track was started.

The area on which the track is to be situated is on the new field located behind the ski hut. The area has been cleared of trees and rough graded. Grass seed and stabilization have taken place within the last two years. We are now at the point of needing funds to finish a field drainage control system and complete proper track placement upon the field.

The Telstar Track Boosters are accepting donations of $50 or equivalent (labor, equipment, materials, etc.) for each square yard of track, which will help make this dream come true. Anyone willing to be a part of this very worthy project please send contributions to: Telstar Track Fund, SAD44, c/o Bruce Powell, 284 Walker's Mills Road, Bethel, ME 04217.

SEEKING CIVIL WAR LETTERS

To the Editor:

I'm looking for copies of letters either written from Civil War soldiers to their families and friends, or letters that were written to the soldiers. I'm making a copy of the original, and typing a copy to go with it that makes it easier to read. I'm keeping the spelling and punctuation as they were, only adding the correct word in parentheses when necessary.

I have 10 letters so far from a previous inquiry. I would like a lot more. I'm sure that there must be lots of letters out there in people's attics and old trunks that no one has ever seen. These letters are a fascinating account of the experiences of common people in uncommon circumstances, and should be saved and shared. As soon as I get them organized into an order, with a brief explanation of who they were and where they were from (if possible), I'm going to make a copy of them all to give to the Greenwood, Bethel, and Woodstock historical societies so they can be shared and preserved. I will gladly make arrangements for any other historical society to have a copy if they would like one.

I can be reached at 875-2462, or copies of the letters can be sent to me at: Box 65, Locke Mills, ME 04255.

PATHWAY'S PATH

There is still an outside chance that work could begin this year on the proposed pathway between Davis Park and the site of what supporters hope will eventually be a new multi-use bridge over the Androscoggin River. But many questions will need to be answered before work can begin, including the exact route of the pathway, the value of the land under the pathway, what surface to use for it, and how to deal with a small marshy area shown here (options being considered include fill and a culvert, or placing a small bridge over the wetland).

THANK YOU. THANK YOU. THANK YOU.

To the Editor:

First of all to my fabulous teachers: Sheri Wilson, Bonny Marshall, Michelle Varoulo; and my business manager, Maryanne Jordan, who keeps me on track with all the details.

Next, there's the talented set designer person, Troy Jordan, who wracks his brain on how to make the Oz figure talk, the snow fall and the State Fair balloon go up in the air.

Then of course, standby Jim Sysko, who is always on hand for explosions or tornadoes.

The fleet-footed backstage helpers, Martha Grover, Shanna Walker, Carrie Kolfe and the rest of us who move sets in seconds. Get some rest.

And of course, the dedicated backstage mothers and teens who help take care of little ones in the gym and get them ready for cues under the capable direction of Nancy Grover, who after up to 10 years is sending her last daughter off to college and resigning from her job with us. (Thanks, Nancy.)

The sound, the lighting, the make-up, the trucks for moving sets, etc., etc., etc. -- all make a production possible -- and my gratitude goes out to all of you.

My gifts were very much appreciated.

But -- most of all to my dancers -- please read this to my little ones, mothers: "You are the best. That was great. I love all of you."

Be ready for a Christmas Follies, dancers, Kathy Burke, music director at Telstar and Spring Street Dance Theater will team up starting in September to learn some fabulous dances for the Follies. The little ones will get ready for their annual Christmas trek to nursing homes.

So, have a great summer -- see you in September.

Political Free Speech

By MIKE BROWN

There was a complaint filed with the state's ethics commission last year by a political candidate who accused his opponent of outright lying in a political advertisement.

After nearly a half-hour debate the commission took the advice of its counsel and indefinitely tabled the complaint. The counsel said that even lying was protected by the First Amendment on free speech.

Apparently politicians got the lying word because all kinds of falsehoods are spinning off politicians and being compounded by verbatim and less than accountable media reporting.

A couple of biggies.

The recent headline in the "Bangor Daily News" was "Governor giving business lessons." The article reported on a "lecture" given by "successful millionaire businessman" Gov. Angus King to a small business conference in Bangor on his business savvy.

King told the group, "Maine is in great shape."

King is running for re-election on his four-year record so what else could he say? Well, for one thing, he could have explained how he molded an alternative energy consultant company with a six-pac of employees into an image that sold for millions to an outer-stater flatlander utility. That would have been buy-eyed neat for the would-be entrepreneurs at the caffeine coffee clutch.

And then King could have explained how he could reconcile his business acumen and Maine in great shape me-savvy promo exclamation with the fact that his administration has increased two successive biennial state budgets a total of a half-billion dollars.

And further as even the governor spoke there was a $400 million-plus (and climbing) gap shortfall for the upcoming biennial budget. A structural gap is the difference between incoming and outgoing hard coin as most household budgeters know.

Well, the obvious answer is First Amendment political free speech.

And then there's House Speaker Libby Mitchell who is being washed out of the Legislature this year by the welcome term limits fall rainfall. Mitchell exercised her fiber First Amendment political free speech in writing a recent weekly newspaper column, "A clean bill of health."

Mitchell waxes and wows on about an alleged bond

"up-grade" by Moody's Investment Services. Free political speech allowed Mitchell to not explain that Moody's last year downgraded Maine's bond rating and now puts it back where it was in the first place. That's an "up-grade" in free speech pol-talk.

The outgoing speaker says that the bond "up-grade" could reduce the cost of borrowing. Well, the downgrade last year didn't change the cost of borrowing one whit and Mitchell's hyping the "up-grade" won't make a tinker's damn in the interest that Maine taxpayers will have to pay on their bond borrowing. So sayeth financial straight shooters.

And, by the way, free political speech allowed Mitchell, who knows very well about the $400 million shortfall gapper, to not explain if Moody's did before it changed Maine's rating.

Mitchell wrote that the Democrats saved the bacon for Mainers. How that happened with a $400 million debt slab still sizzling in the state's budget frypan isn't explained. Nor is the political free speech toast that the D's (and of course their palsy King) created a budget with "no gimmicks."

How about this non-gimmick. The D's and gov couldn't get some $130 million in bonds to fix up the State House and build a new prison past the State House rounda water cooler. So they stiffed the people by circumventing the public referendum route by renaming a $20 million quasi-governmental authority into a $100 million-plus one for both purposes and laid the non-revenue debt tab on the general fund.

Mitchell's political free speech also praises the fact that Maine retires its bonds in 10 years to save interest money while State Treasurer Dale McCormick, whom Mitchell and the Democrats shunted into that office, insists on amortizing bonds for 20 years and increasing interest payments so, she says, "we can borrow even more money."

Political free speech -- don't you love it? It ain't just grand -- it's millions.

Former town clerk pleads guilty to theft

HANOVER--Former Town Clerk Carrilee Pitcher pled guilty to Class D theft Tuesday after admitting she stole $29,192 in town funds. She was sentenced in Oxford County Superior Court to 364 days in jail, with the time suspended. She was also fined $1,500 and placed on one year's probation. In May, a grand jury had indicted her for Class B theft. The charge was negotiated down in exchange for the guilty plea. Most of the missing money was from excise tax funds, according to selectman Bruce Powell. Assistant district attorney Joseph O'Connor said that Pitcher, 37, had no criminal record. She repaid the stolen money, with interest, and paid for the town's records to be re-audited. "She was very genuinely remorseful," said O'Connor.

Hanover moratorium approved

HANOVER--Voters Monday adopted a 180-day moratorium on building by a 69-58 margin. The vote was prompted by a petition circulated in response to Mead Corporation's plan to build a chip mill in Hanover. The moratorium temporarily blocks any projects over 5,000 square feet. Mead recently withdrew its plan for the mill, citing costs needed to make it more acceptable to residents.

Board's fore-sight questioned

NEWRY--Planning Board member Art Marshall expressed concern last week that the board might approve Sunday River Ski Resort's application to build several structures associated with a planned 18-hole golf course without the public being aware of the process. At last week's meeting, he asked if the skiway planned a public hearing on the project, "as a courtesy, as much as anything else." Skiway engineer Joe Aloisio said the resort has no plans for a hearing. Planners Beth Bean and Norm Davis said they thought the public is already aware of the project. The board is currently considering plans for a club house and maintenance building on the 400-acre course. Planners will not vote on the golf course itself, but will review erosion control and fertilizer and pesticide management plans. The Department of Environmental Protection must approve the plans for the course. The Planning Board will discuss the building plans at its July 1 meeting, and possibly vote on July 15.

SAD44 raises OK'd

BETHEL--The SAD44 School Board Monday approved a three-year salary agreement with the district central office staff and supervisors. The six employees will each receive an approximate 10 percent raise over the three-year period.

Canoe trek starts Saturday

ANDROSCOGGIN RIVER--The third annual Androscoggin River Source to the Sea Canoe Trek will take place June 27 to July 15, beginning in Magalloway and ending in Phippsburg. The trip will be divided into 19 segments, with participants taking part for any length of time from one to 19 days. On July 3, the trek will pass from Gilead to Bethel. That evening the Friends of the Androscoggin will host a 6 p.m. pot luck supper at West Parish Congregational Church, for trekkers and anyone else interested. After the meal Jim and Lisa Lisius of Farmington will show slides of their 15-month, 5,100-mile journey by canoe from Oregon to South Carolina. For more information on any of the events, call Steve Wight at 824-2410 or 824-0488.

BETHEL--The Maine Canoe and Kayak Association Androscoggin River Race will take place Sunday, June 28. High water forced postponement of the event this past weekend. Registration will be held from 8 to 11 a.m. at the Riverside Campground, with a race briefing at 10:30 a.m. The annual race was resumed last summer, after a hiatus of several years.

Temporary juvenile housing proposed

PARIS--Plans are in the works to convert an unused house owned by Oxford County into an "attended care" facility that would temporarily hold juvenile lawbreakers. The house is located near the county government offices in South Paris. Juveniles are currently sent to the Cumberland County Jail while a longer-term decision about their future is made. More than 300 juveniles are referred to the juvenile intake officer each year. The cost to renovate the house has not yet been determined.

Gondola will reach Heavenly

STATELINE, Nev.--Major real estate developments at two of American Skiing Company's resorts received approvals last week. At Heavenly on the southern end of Lake Tahoe, ASC acquired the rights to the last of the major lodging projects within the Park Avenue Development District of South Lake Tahoe. The project involves the demolition and redevelopment of a 34-acre site in the downtown area. The deal gives Heavenly the opportunity to build more than 750 units in the heart of downtown, with direct access to skiing at Heavenly provided by a high-speed gondola from the center of the Redevelopment District. The gondola will access some of Heavenly's high-mountain terrain. At another ASC resort, The Canyons in Utah, approvals were granted for a Grand Summit Resort Hotel and Conference Center and a lodge.

Dump and Dine Day is Sunday

WOODSTOCK--Sunday, June 28, has been designated Lake Cleanup Day by the Community Lakes Association. All those interested in taking part are invited to help organize a clean up of their lake or pond sometime during the morning. At noon, participants will meet at the Greenwood/Woodstock Transfer Station. A picnic lunch (bring your own) will then be held at the picnic area across Route 26. For general information call Nancy Willard at (207) 665-2788.

Art fair is July 4

BETHEL--The ninth annual Bethel Art Fair will take place Saturday, July 4, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Bethel Common. Artists and artisans from around New England -- along with youth artists from the Bethel area -- will display their work.

New festival planned for September

BETHEL--The first annual Bethel Heritage Days is scheduled for Sept. 19 and 20. Possible activities will include mill and woodlot tours with homemade sawmill demonstrations, a Chowder Festival under a tent on the common, a bicycle road race, farm tours, an open house at all lodging establishments, a canoe race, a Harvest Dinner and Contra Dance on Saturday night, dried flower arranging and pumpkin carving, a pie eating contest, a hike-a-thon, a hay building demonstration and an Antique Car and Vintage Airplane Show. The Bethel Common will be the focal point of the weekend. Individuals, community organizations and businesses interested in participating may call Paula at the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce at (207) 824-2282, or attend an organizational meeting July 1 at noon at the White Mountain National Forest Office.

From the Bethel Police log:

Shoplifter caught in the act

At 4:45 p.m. on June 19 a store employee observed a subject hiding a bottle of liquor under his jacket. He was arrested by an off-duty officer and taken to the Police Department. There he was found to be in possession of another bottle, also under his jacket. Timothy Roberts, 26, of Bethel was issued a criminal summons for theft by unauthorized taking/transfers.

Wednesday, June 17

At 7:15 p.m. an employee of a local store reported that the female employees of the store were experiencing problems with male subjects sexually harassing them. Police advised the complainant to ask any customers causing problems to leave, and if they didn't, to call police.

Thursday, June 18

At 7:31 p.m. police observed a subject stuck on the Songo Pond Road. The officer stopped to see if assistance was needed, and found the subject was very intoxicated. He was given several field sobriety tests, which he failed. John C. Happell, 54, of South Paris was arrested and transported to the Oxford County Jail, where he was processed and given an intoxilizer test. On completion of the test he was summoned for OUI and operating after suspension. He was held in lieu of bail.

Saturday, June 20

At 9:40 p.m. a subject was stopped on Railroad Street for operating left at an intersection (around a traffic island). He appeared intoxicated, and was given several field sobriety tests and a balloon test. Gareth S. Hill, 56, of Harrison, Mich., was summoned for OUI.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

The former DiMarco Chiropractic building, the outsized, baby-blue box at the corner of Railroad Street, was sold recently at foreclosure auction to local businessman Bob Chadbourne.

The building was built in 1995 and is in excellent structural condition, according to Chadbourne.

But it is also one of the first structures visitors and the rest of us see when entering Bethel village, and its style (or lack of same) is by common consent totally out of keeping with the rest of the village.

Chadbourne agrees, and plans to change things.

He has hired Portland architect Rob Whitten to come up with a plan for redoing the exterior of the building.

"We want to make it look like it belongs in Bethel," Chadbourne said.

The only alternative to hiring an architect, he said, would have been: "to board up the windows, paint it red, and put a cupola on the roof."

ings," she said.

Other area real estate rental agents with whom she has talked also report significant business from the pipeline project, Gillies said.

Her only worry now is that if the project goes past November, incoming skiers will be left out in the cold.

The pipeline is scheduled for completion in November.

Camping out

The workers in the pipeline trenches can be found staying at area campgrounds, motels and condominiums.

The Riverside Campground in Bethel, for instance, has 13 or 14 sites occupied by the pipelers. They'll likely be there right into the fall, too.

In most cases, said campground owner Jeff Parsons, the campers are husband and wife. There are a few with children, and a few single workers.

Parsons, in his second year of operation, said they will provide a good base of business for him through the summer.

"It's been very easy dealing with them," he said. "They're great folks. They're like a little community -- they know each other from other jobs."

This past Saturday evening, he said, they got out guitars and other instruments for a jam session. And -- contrary to some stereotypes -- "they don't give the impression of heavy drinking," he said.

The workers had just gotten settled in two weekends ago when they had to evacuate the campground because of overflowing waters from the nearby Androscoggin River.

"They were incredibly helpful to each other," said Parsons. A few were away from their sites at the time, so the others moved their campers for them.

Busy at the Backstage

Harry Faulkner's Backstage Lounge in Bethel is also benefiting from the workers' presence.

He's usually closed on Sundays, Mondays and Wednesdays. But this summer, he'll be open every evening but Monday. "And if I would, they'd be delighted if I'd stay open Monday," he said. "They'll probably have more of an impact on me than the ski season."

Skier business, he said, is generally limited to weekends.

The pipelers typically come in right after work. "They're gone by 9 or 10," he said, because they work early and long days.

How does he like them?

"They're good guys, regular guys," said Faulkner. "I haven't had any problems with them. My locals -- the carpenters, the loggers -- are getting along very well with them. They understand each other. I don't know about the rest of the community."

Bethel Police Chief Darren Tripp was asked if there had been any problems associated with the workers' presence.

He said there have been no more problems than with any other given group coming into the area. "So far, so good," said Tripp.

He said he has spoken with the managers of the pipeline contractors, and they have offered him their home phone numbers to help deal with any problems that might arise.

other four or five years.

"There are very few people who can do what we do, or would want to."

He operates a side boom, placing the pipes on the right-of-way, in preparation for putting them in the trench.

The PNGTS project, he said, "is a pretty easy job. There aren't many hills (that the route crosses)."

He's comparing it, for instance, to laying pipe at 1,300-foot elevations through Pennsylvania's Allegheny Mountains. In those kinds of places, he said, his boom would be secured to the side of a hill by a winch, with his life depending on the winch operator.

It can be dangerous work, they said. Mark, also a boom operator, said he has lost friends on the job, including workers crushed by sliding pipe.

Another threat to the pipelers, said Hebert, are snakes. Copperheads, for example. "Pipelers don't like snakes," he said. "Snakes tend to commit suicide on pipeline jobs -- they jump onto the ends of shovels."

Mark said one of the worst jobs he did was in South Carolina, under

'Pipelers don't like snakes.

onto the ends of shovels.'

"Hebert"

very hot and humid conditions. "I'll never go back there," he said.

He comes from a family of pipelers. His brother is also working on the PNGTS job, and his father did pipelines in the 1930s.

High cost of living

For their efforts, the pipelers are paid well, by most people's standards. And they've heard complaints about the upwards of $1,500-a-week wages.

But, said Hebert, people need to realize that often they only work five or six months out of a year.

And the money usually goes to maintaining two households -- a base one and the one at the job site. Sometimes whole families travel together, other times they're in two different places.

Throw in traveling and other expenses, Joe said, and it costs double to live.

On rainy days, said Hebert, "we sit in the motel room and get $60."

As for spending their after-work time in bars -- a practice that has also generated negative comments and images -- Hebert said, "It's better than sitting in a motel room and watching 'Lassie.'"

They say they have a strong work ethic, and need it to be accepted by their co-workers. "There are a lot of guys who work hard," said Joe. "You're not accepted among pipelers until you pass a test. But nobody knows what the test is."

It's just a matter of working hard, he said, until they get to a point of being accepted, or not.

The poor weather last week put the pipeline work behind right from the start, they said. It's supposed to be completed in November.

That, said Hebert, may mean going to 12- or 14-hour days, seven days a week. "If you see one of us in a month and we growl at you, you'll know we're working seven days a week," he said. (Ski resorters, relate.)

Asked whether he'd been growled at by the locals, Hebert didn't answer specifically, but indicated some pipelers had been met with at least a little suspicion.

But the men did have some words of reassurance. Their combined self-assessment: "We talk about women while we're working. But when we go to a bar at night, we talk about work. Your daughters are safe."

Easement

with Dearden and discussed how they could work together. In terms of the timber harvesting, the easement specified that the allowable harvesting be done under an approved forestry management plan. Bohr and Polak introduced Dearden to local forester John Laban. Dearden was comfortable with him and liked the idea that Laban had familiarity with both conservation easements and MLT.

Dearden's purposes for timber harvesting were threefold -- obtain wood for heat, use timber from his own property in his restoration projects, and generate some income so he could put the money back into these projects.

Laban estimated the value of the trees on the property and marked trees for harvest. Three local loggers -- Andre Bernier, Stan Wilson, and Mark Beaudoin -- were involved in the harvesting. Each had different roles with the terrain, which varied from steep and rocky to shore front.

The harvesting is completed now. Dearden achieved his goals, but decided not to keep timber for lumber. A walk through the property shows little evidence of the harvesting activities. In fact, the most noticeable change is an area where Central Maine Power cut back a number of trees along the road.

Now that the initial harvest is complete, Dearden will be able to cut timber again under the easement agreement in five to 10 years.

Regarding structure restoration, the caretaker's cottage has been converted into a two-story home that is currently rented to a family. Dearden and his partner, Christine Marcotte, have converted the front part of the barn to two floors of living space.

In their spare time -- they both work full-time at Sunday River -- they are working on finishing the back of the barn as living space. When that is done, they will begin working on the original house. They plan to have both barn and house as part of their future bed and breakfast.

The down side

The only stumbling block created by the conservation easement is a restriction on where they can build. "It would have been very picturesque to have built a bed and breakfast on the property that has waterfront on the pond," said Dearden, "but that was not allowed under the easement."

Dearden said he does not have to make every decision in conjunction with the MLT. The major ones were timber harvesting and the scope of renovations. MLT, in its responsibility for upholding the terms of the easement, is in contact with Dearden yearly. If they should find any violation of the easement, they would work with him to rectify it.

MLT oversees two other conservation easements. One is in Upton. One is in Newry. Both are larger than Dearden's.

Little information is available on the Riches, who established the easement, or their motivations for doing so.

But Marcotte pointed out structural modifications whose only purpose was to avoid cutting down a tree. The roof line of the house was indented to save a tree. The roof of the boat house was cut in to allow several trees to grow.

A conservation easement is a flexible tool which protects land while leaving it in private ownership. A legal document that is part of the property deed, it guides future uses of the property regardless of ownership.

Dearden has few concerns about any limitations or drawbacks of the easement. He speculated that it could slow the sale of the property if the time comes when he wants to sell. The property had been on the market for quite a while when Dearden began negotiations. The lack of development potential may have hindered an earlier sale.

There are potential income, estate, and property tax benefits which can accompany a conservation easement. For some, those benefits -- along with the lack of development potential -- may be an attraction.

Pathway

project assistant Don Murphy.

The committee acknowledged Tuesday that if the bridge is to be built, some way is going to have to be found to come up with the additional money.

The options currently under consideration are applying to MDOT for consideration during a later round of funding (probably 1999), seeking contributions from local snowmobile clubs or undertaking other local fundraising initiatives.

Three committee members present Tuesday agreed that the MDOT option appeared to have the best chance of success, and that the town's chances would be stronger if it could go to the state with plans in hand.

Accordingly, they agreed to ask the consultants hired for the pathway project to come up with a design and cost estimates.

The consultants, Taylor Engineering of Auburn and Terrance J.

DeWan and Associates of Yarmouth, were hired in February to handle the preliminary phases of the pathway project, including soliciting public opinion, surveying the site, analyzing the soils and wetlands and dealing with the various regulatory agencies.

The committee also agreed to have Murphy contact MDOT to explore the possibility of using the remaining grant funds on the pathway alone, rather than tackling the bridge project.

MDOT's permission would be required for such a move because the bridge was part of the original grant package.

Also awaiting resolution are issues such as exactly where the path would run, how much the land being donated by Bethel Station is worth (that value is being counted toward the town's matching contribution for the grant), and how the pathway should be surfaced.

The committee did decide Tuesday to recommend that the bridge go upstream of the present highway bridge.

A downstream site would be easier to reach but would locate the bridge close to power lines.

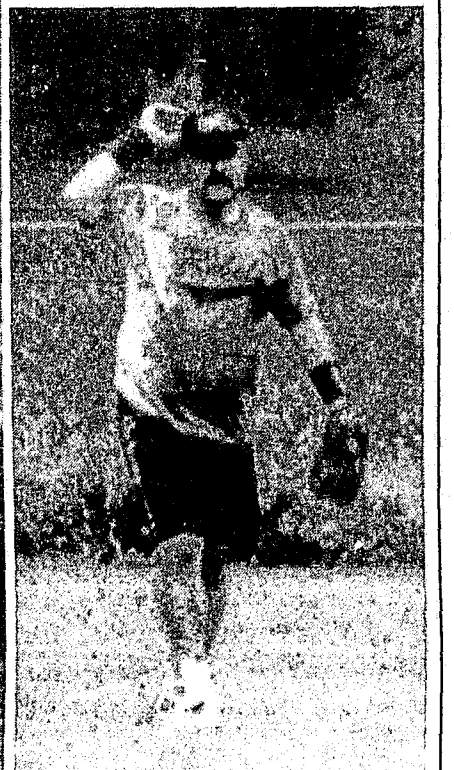

The upstream site will require some way for pathway users to cross Route 2. Murphy will discuss with MDOT the possibility of a pedestrian tunnel under the road (which is elevated at that point).

Earlier this year, pathway supporters were hopeful work on it could begin this year, and despite the delays, there is still a chance that could happen, Murphy said Tuesday.

The town selectmen must sign off on any revisions to the contract with the pathway consultants. The committee plans to meet with the selectmen at their regular meeting on July 20.

GAME OLD-TIMERS--Gary Roak (left) of Greenwood swings away at the Greenwood/Woodstock old-timers softball game Saturday. On another play, the long arm of the law proved to be too short, as Woodstock's Darren Tripp (right) just missed a line drive hit his way in left field. His valiant effort may have come up dry, but he got up all wet. Woodstock ultimately emerged victorious, but organizers hope the game is only the first of many to come. (Photos by Ron Smith)

The Woodstock High School Alumni Banquet was held Saturday evening, June 13, at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills with 130 people attending. A delicious dinner was served by the Legion Auxiliary. After the meeting, the Jordan girls, Amanda, Heather and Tiffany, entertained with some dances. We voted to meet at the Legion Hall next year, the second Saturday of June, for the banquet.

Sunday, Alice and Ken Hoyt and Beatrice Farnum joined Lola and Clayton Crockett, David, JoAnn, Ray and Shawn Crockett for Shawn's birthday party. That evening they went to Norway to help celebrate Rhonda Chase's birthday with other family members.

Kaye, Reginald and Jolynn Glines called on their aunts, Edith Hathaway and Beatrice Farnum, on Sunday.

Steve, Beth and Marybeth Hoover spent the weekend in Granby, Quebec, and visited the Granby Zoo.

Evelyn T. Bean was at Mt. Desert Island on Thursday to take and give to the Tremont Historical Society many articles and items of much value that were in her possession, which belonged to her grandparents, Benjamin and Harriett Murphy, and her mother, Frances Murphy Thurston. Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Levensden of North Yarmouth went with her.

The Woodstock Firemen's Auxiliary is planning a lawn and food sale on July 18 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the fire station. Any donations of items or food would help this worthy cause. You may contact June Seames, Lois Chase, Kathy Eastman or Mary Emmons if you have any donations.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet on July 2 at the Grange Hall. Dinner will be put on by the Grange. Program will be a game party; please bring a gift to be used as a game prize. Mr. Gordon has had to cancel; he will come later this fall.

Curator Larry Billings has given the Historical Society several items lately, a postcard collection, a seashell collection, a silver serving piece, a large collection of jewelry, several rare tins, a small oil painting of a covered bridge and a drawing of a lighthouse. Paul Billings gave an American History magazine. The society museum is an excellent facility. Visit it this summer. It is open each Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The June meeting of the society featured a video on Joshua Chamberlain and the 20th Maine. Treasurer Paul Billings presided at the meeting. Ruth Cox and Elaine Roberts watched the museum in the afternoon. Members volunteer time to watch the museum during the summer months.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham

I write this not knowing if it is too late. I crashed at 8 last night and in the middle of the night realized that it was Monday, not Sunday. If you are reading this, then you will know that Polly managed to get it into the paper. If not, you will read something else next week.

This is the first time in a week that I have used the computer, because I've been afraid to turn it on with thunderstorms happening frequently. Tasha and I almost got hit with lightning while standing beside the house. The clap of thunder and the flash were practically on top of each other. It was like sparks flying in the air. After that, we both retreated, quickly, into the house.

My garden, and everyone else's that I have spoken to, is suffering from the rain, not to mention my lack of attention. Between rain, mud, and early drought, this has not been the ideal growing season. I do have several zucchini plants coming up, and my lettuce and spinach are one and one-half to two inches long. If we have a few days with sun, I might be able to break off a few pieces. The peas by the house are six to eight inches. The ones in the garden are quite short, yet. Many of my pea plants did not come up, so I replanted peas this week. I also finally put in the broccoli and brussels sprout plants that I bought weeks ago. I should check on them today or tomorrow to see if they survived. Judging by the lack of produce available at last Saturday's farmers' market, I know that everyone is having the same problem.

In other news, we still have a pond in the yard and it extends into the pasture. Tasha likes to splash through it and treats us, often, with the smell of wet dog. Quite delightful. Last year's spring pond was the first place that Tasha swam. Not that we didn't take her to the river the previous summer, she just refused to swim in it -- too cold, I think. After she went in the yard, we took her to Horseshoe Pond last summer, and she really liked it. We'll see about this summer.

Guess this will be a short column. I'll catch up next week and will fill everyone in on our trip to see "Lord of the Dance." Have a good week, and stay cool in the forecasted heat.

Mason Township

by Richard Grover

It's Sunday evening, and it seems as though the "monsoon rains" have only recently moderated. My garden is still much too muddy to get into and pull weeds or till, I just emptied my rain gauge, and we have had 12.5 inches of rain since Friday, June 12, the latest 1.4 inches coming over the weekend. My son in Denver, Colo., says their average annual rainfall is about 14 inches, so we've had almost a year's worth in the past eight or nine days.

Our Florida neighbors, Rosemary and Dennis Bunn, who own the small camp just across Pleasant River from Mona and me, arrived in Mason last Thursday. They plan to spend several weeks here unwinding from their school-teaching jobs in Florida. With their arrival, the population of Mason jumped 5 percent. They said they saw a black bear cross the field by their camp the afternoon they arrived. That means our calf, Goober, may be at risk if we leave him out in the pasture alone at night. Now, losing a gosling is one thing, but giving a bear a veal smorgasbord would be too much to "bear."

While we have been deluged with rain, my daughter Cheryl, who lives in Illinois, was deluged with water inside her home. A couple weeks ago, she was awakened by the sound of water gushing in her laundry room on the ground floor. When she checked on the source, she waded through a couple inches of water in the hall to discover that a fitting in their one-inch waterline had separated, squirting a full pipe stream of water into the laundry room and thence into the hall, the downstairs bathroom and the family room. Then, she yelled at husband Mark, who began looking for the water shutoff from the city water main. This took another five minutes, or so, as he forgot that the shutoff was in the crawl space. By this time the floors were ruined in the laundry, the hall and downstairs bath. Repair workers hope to have the damage repaired by the end of this week.

To add to Cheryl's water woes, the clinic where she works experienced the same problem the very next day. There was a water leak of some kind there, forcing evacuation of several of the offices and examination rooms. Although her office was not affected, I think Cheryl is developing a complex about leaky water pipes.

I have a couple more "Darwin Award" nominations:

A man in Newton, N.C., accidentally shot himself to death a few years ago, when, awakening to the sound of a ringing telephone beside his bed, he answered his loaded .38 caliber Smith & Wesson pistol, which discharged, blowing a hole in his head.

(my favorite): The mystery of the cause of death of a man found dead in his own bed was solved when the autopsy of the body showed large amounts of methane gas in his system. It appears that the man died in his sleep from breathing a poisonous cloud of methane hanging over his bed. Why the cloud of methane? The small room lacked ventilation, and the man's diet had consisted primarily of beans, cabbage and other "gassy stuff." This proved to be a lethal combination, and the poor man gassed himself.

Upton

by
Eleanor LeCompte

Rain, Rain go away, come again some other day. Well, the rain did go away and it came again almost every day. We were awakened at 5 a.m. on Wednesday to the roar of Stoney Brook opening up and overflowing into the lake. It is amazing to see that small, trickling brook turn into a raging torrent. This action occurs when the Dead Cambridge overflows upstream from the brook. The river had extremely high and rough water all the way down into the lake. Unfortunately, Wilfred Lavallee had docked his boat next to the river and it was swamped. Wilfred was out of town when this occurred and the boat remained under water for three days. Wilfred and his brother, Roger, raised it with the aid of a come-along. The motor which was completely submerged started up on the first crank, much to the amazement of all concerned.

School has closed for the summer and the kids are happy and free. Now if the weather will cooperate they can get out-of-doors. At the awards ceremony for the Crescent Park School, several Upton children were honored. Cross-country skiing awards were presented to Michelle Aron, Jennifer Aldrich and Lisa Aron. The perfect attendance award went to Michelle Aron. A Penmanship Award was given to Tyler Aldrich. Tyler is in kindergarten.

The Ladies Aid Society met June 16. It was voted to postpone the Yard and Bake Sale to a later date. Lucille Largesse demonstrated making greeting cards and personal notes with cloth appliques. We all had a good time and brought home some very nice cards. Some will be for sale at the Yard Sale.

Gertrude Pooler, of the Goodwin Camp, was a guest at the meeting. Mema and Bob Monroe attended the Golden Anniversary Party for Pastor and Mrs. Rodney Hanscom. Mema said it was a wonderful tribute to two good people.

Margaret Mitchell is busy preparing for her annual family reunion. She puts a lot of time and effort into the arrangements which gives her a lot of satisfaction.

Mike and Rosanna Yarnell and their children, Charlie and Pia, had a very soggy vacation in Upton. They did manage to get in a day of fishing.

A birthday dinner was held at Sutton Place in Colebrook. The honored 60-year-olds were Larry Nelson and Gene Wixom. It was a fine evening with good friends and good food.

Gerry Gieling Sr. and Gerry Gieling Jr. were in town for a few days of work and fishing.

Ray and Vi Bernier entertained a large group of family at their home for Father's Day.

Now back to the rain! We have two retired meteorologists in Upton and they have assured me that there is a possibility of sunshine in the near future, but they cautiously state that they can't say when.

Troy Ryerson is working in Nan-tucket, Mass., for a while. They are building a town hall there.

A trip to Story Land recently was enjoyed by Craig Ryerson and Jane, Craig's grandchildren, Hannah and Austin, Alex Ryerson, Carrie Rolfe and Cleo Ryerson. They took in all the rides and fun things there. Cleo even rode the roller coaster.

Cleo Ryerson is having some work done on her home here in South Woodstock.

Bob and Janette Heath celebrated their 26th wedding anniversary on June 16. We wish them many, more.

Wayne Ross is in Portland hospital after having heart surgery this week. Also Audrey Hadley is a patient at Portland hospital.

I spent part of Wednesday afternoon visiting with Joan Poland. We had a good time catching up on news and enjoyed showing pictures of her two great-grandsons.

Sales can be held at the Union Church here in South Woodstock this summer.

Today is quite sunny, I hope the rain will go away so we can enjoy the summer and sunshine before winter sets in. Summer is always too short.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that Dr. Alan Chase has made a monetary donation to the society. Much thanks. The June meeting featured a video on Joshua Chamberlain, supplied by Paul Billings. Larry Billings has given a painting of a covered bridge, a pearl collar that once belonged to Verna Swan, postcards from all over the United States, a drawing of a lighthouse and a large collection of jewelry to the museum. Ruth Cox and Elaine Roberts watched the museum recently.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that you can't fool all the people all the time, but it doesn't matter. A majority will do."

North Newry

by Gil Seeley
My niece, Theresa Toti from Harrisville, R.I., spent a few days with me here in North Newry. We took Louise Tetley to lunch one day at Northland Restaurant in New Hampshire. Then we treated Sylvia Harrington to a birthday feast in Bethel. Happy birthday, Sylvia.

"Eat the Weeds -- or drink it -- The sun, the Cross and garlic are the only three things reputed to scare away a vampire! Hal Both the Egyptians and Greeks regarded garlic as having supernatural powers. Even today, there are people who maintain garlic as having many beneficial properties, that it should be regarded with suitable "awe" and used in generous amounts at the first sign of almost any illness. Garlic acts as a diuretic, stimulant, expectorant and sweat promoter. For centuries, it has been a common European remedy for colds, coughs and sore throats. It was used during the Great Plague. It is good for intestinal worms. A clove or two of garlic pounded with honey and taken two or three nights is good for arthritis, sciatica and sinus infections. It stimulates energy, prompts urination, loosens congestion, cleans the stomach and aids digestion. Take it with parsley or caraway seeds to kill the aroma. What more do you want? Good health!

Mother Nature could not make up her mind last Thursday; first it was fog, then it was sunshine, then it was rain -- again and again, all day. I remember when, years ago, I had company from Rhode Island and we were going toward Upton, and it started to snow. It was around Aug. 2nd at the time. I wonder what the summer will bring this time! Have a good day!

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan
"You can hear the merry whistle/And the laughter loud and clear/The happiness unequalled/At this special time of year/There's a girl's delightful giggle/And a boy's impatient shout/And you know without a question/It is summer -- school is out." -- Garnett A. Schultz

In June there is a stirring call of youth to youth.

Summer brings changes to the whole sweep of landscape. It works magic in the senses of all who walk its trails.

"The lady's slippers stand/In little pairs awaiting feet/To dance along a misty street/All pearly with morning dew." -- Marguerite Gode

I walked near over 50 of these this week. What a lovely sight. I am delighted that I can walk short distances again. Not only were the "slippers" a delight, but there was the granite ledge, rough and with lichens, ants crawling, a dead stick, gray and weathered and greenish on its underside.

I'd like to climb to the top of the hill upon this summer's day and watch the great white billowing clouds go sailing on their way. I'd like to lie on the soft, warm turf and see the wind-stirred trees; to smell the fragrance of the flowers and hear the hum of the bees. I'd like to look on the cozy farm and the fields and pond below. Oh, to climb to the top of the hill is the pleasantest thing I know.

Since the wind stopped blowing the days have been sunny and nice. Two days I spent planting my flowers. Albert prepared the soil. I found it very hard work this year, but they are pretty and I hope I can keep them that way.

I have had several callers during the week; all I enjoyed. One I had in school years ago, Glenn Hayes. How the years go!

I had a delightful visit with Pat Steward with whom I had lunch. It was our first meeting.

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

BETHEL MEN GRADUATE

The National Outdoor Leadership School (NOLS), and Leave No Trace Inc. have announced that Dan Elliott, Andy Chakoumakos, Mike Cooper and Roy Hunter, all of Bethel, completed a Leave No Trace Master Course on May 29.

Each year, NOLS conducts two-to-five-day courses focusing on minimum-impact camping and travel techniques, outdoor teaching skills, and wildland ethics.

Leave No Trace (LNT) is a national educational program that promotes and teaches responsible outdoor recreation, geared toward the users of the nation's backcountry.

Each LNT course focuses on a particular outdoor environment and activity including hiking, river travel and travel with stock animals. Students on these courses learn such things as how to build a campfire that doesn't leave a scar on the land, how to travel in areas of sensitive soils, and how to choose a campsite that won't be visible when they leave.

GOULD ATHLETE NAMED TO U.S. TEAM-The United States Ski and Snowboard Association has announced that Gould Academy student, Carl Burnett of Cape Elizabeth, has been named to the United States Disabled Alpine Ski Team. Burnett's being named to the team was based on his success during the 1998 ski season. The Junior National Champion in all events, Burnett finished fourth overall (seniors and juniors) for mono-skiers in the giant slalom and fifth overall for mono-skiers in both the slalom and super-g at the United States Disabled Alpine Championships. In a letter to Burnett, U.S. Disabled Team head coach Ewald Zirbissegger commended Burnett for his hard work and dedication to the sport and stated, "We are extremely proud of your accomplishment and look forward to working with you as you strive to reach your goal in the future." A member of the National Honor Society, Burnett will be a senior at Gould Academy in the fall.

KIDS SUMMER GUIDE

BETHEL RECREATION BOARD Summer Programs

The first ten participants will have their class at 9 am and the second group at 8 am. There is a $5 registration fee payable to the Town Office. Students attending these classes will be required to pay an additional $5 per lesson to the Bethel Inn. The inn will furnish clubs and balls.

MOUNTAIN BIKING -

Rick Boucher of Mahoosuc Mountain Sports, located in Locke Mills, will run a mountain biking program for Bethel area children. There will be both beginners and advanced group sessions. Classes will be limited to 12 students. The beginners group (age 8 & up) will meet on Tuesdays, starting on July 7th at 8 am and ending at 9:45 am. The more advanced group (age 12 & up) will meet on Wednesdays starting July 8th. Both programs run throughout the summer and all participants must have their own mountain bike and helmets. There will be a $5 registration fee per student, ($10 per family) for Bethel residents payable to the Town Office. Register early, due to a limit of 12 students.

CANOE LESSONS -

TRIPS & CHILDREN: tips to take on the road

When taking a trip with children, keeping them occupied and relaxed can help make the trip memorable and fun for everyone.

Here are some ideas:

- PRE-TRIP PLANNING - Talk about the trip with your children. Tell them about things like how long the car or plane ride will be, where they'll sleep and eat, what kinds of things they'll see, and the people they may visit. Plan to collect things for a "trip" scrapbook.
- CAR ACTIVITIES - Bring along a bag of surprises for your children and bring out things as they get bored or cranky. Older youngsters can help navigate and read road signs. Storytelling and music tapes, books, car games, snacks and good conversation can help occupy time and make the trip more meaningful.
- SKILLS - Car travel provides an opportunity to practice things like colors or letters. Spotting something that starts with each letter of the alphabet, finding rhyming words, can be fun.
- DELAYED GRATIFICATION - Discuss with children how the road trip is a means to an end and how they can make the best of it. Talk about other situations that are examples of gratification delay, such as driving in order to visit grandma.

More and more teens across Maine are discovering Outward Bound as the ideal summer adventure - an experience that will offer them skills, introduce them to new ideas and challenges, and provide them with memories.

This summer, as part of a new community outreach program, Outward Bound is offering SAD 44 students ages 14 to 17 years old special discounted stand-by tuition.

From its base in Newry, Hurricane Island Outward Bound School offers summer courses in hiking, backpacking and canoeing. There are sailing and sea kayaking courses offered at the School's Rockland base. Hurricane Island Outward Bound School also has a base in Greenville, on Moosehead Lake, where canoeing and backpacking courses are available. Most courses, both land and sea, offer rock-climbing or a ropes course, or both.

Outward Bound is a non-profit educational organization whose mission is to conduct safe, adventure-based courses structured to encourage growth & discovery, to inspire self-confidence, self-reliance, concern for others and care for the environment.

Youth Hotline Answers Anguished Calls for Help

Boys Town phones staffed by Trained Professionals

Where do they turn for help?
One answer is the Boys Town
National Hotline
(1-800-448-3000).

The hotline is open 24-hours a day, everyday, and is staffed by highly trained professionals.

It's the only national hotline that children and parents can call with any problem at any time - including physical or sexual abuse,
depression, thoughts of suicide, drugs or alcohol, or after fighting with your parents.

Kids & Pets

A Healthy Combination

According to Dr. Alan Beck, director of Purdue University's Human Animal Bond Program, pets can have a way of making all children feel safe, loved and worthwhile. Why? Because they love unconditionally and "listen" with an uncritical ear...always.

Pets as Teachers

Pets can give children a healthy dose of self-esteem, teach them about nurturing, and even provide them with emotional feedback.
In fact, kids who share in caring for the family pet are often the first ones on the block to develop a good sense of responsibility.

Pets as Best Friends

A child's best security blanket besides a loving family can be a pet. Pets give love, are constant companions, and - perhaps best of all - can keep a secret! What's more, the family pet is non-judgemental, no matter the situation.

Pets as Siblings

Pets, like siblings, have a knack for enhancing a child's social interaction both inside and outside the family. They also provide a focus for the entire family to engage in fun activities as a group and improve the parent-child bond. But, before parents consider a family pet, the children should be educated about responsibilities, and involve the children in the pet's obedience training.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

The Bethel Historical Society's annual picnic will be held this year at the McLaughlin Foundation Garden and Horticultural Center in South Paris on July 2.

Founded by Bernard McLaughlin in 1936, it has become one of inland Maine's most beloved perennial gardens with a diverse offering of mature collections including hostas, daylilies, astilbes, iris, phlox, sedum, cimicifuga, sempervivums and over 200 lilacs.

Members and friends of the society should assemble for carpooling at the Dr. Moses Mason House for departure at 5 p.m. in order to arrive at the garden by 5:30 p.m. when the picnic will begin. Those attending should bring a picnic lunch. Lemonade will be served by the society. Following the picnic, there will be guided tours and a presentation on the center.

Fundraising for the annual Bethel Historical Society community picnic and brass band concert on the Fourth of July continues to attract those willing to support the appearance of the Portland Brass Quintet. Among the most recent contributors are: Alan and June Abbott, Bethel; Kenneth and Gwyneth Bolir, Bethel; Richard and Lorrie Hoch, Bethel; Rebecca Kendall, Bethel; Leslie and Chris Otten, Newry; James and Lucia Owen, Bethel; Eleanor Wilson, Bedford, Mass. Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity in making this event possible. Contributions in any amount may be sent to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

A major traveling exhibit from the Maine Historical Society, titled "The Way Life Should Be: Tourism, Romance, and Reality in Early Modern Maine," will open in the meeting room of the Bethel Historical Society's Dr. Moses Mason House on Friday, June 26, at 11 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. It will also be open this Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Funded by a major grant from the Maine Humanities Council, the exhibit highlights some of the technological and social changes that occurred in Maine between 1900 and 1920. The nostalgia for what many saw as a "lost world" grew with the interest taken in what became known as the Colonial Revival, which helped stimulate interest in tourist attractions.

The society's Capital Campaign Committee will also sponsor a luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the meeting room, which will provide a meal for those attending the quilt show at Middle Intervale Meeting House on Friday and Saturday (June 26 and 27). Anyone wishing further information should call the society office at 824-2908.

From the

Bethel Lions Club

The annual Mollycokett Day celebration will be held on Saturday, July 18, on the Bethel Common, with a rain date of July 19. This year's theme will be "Country Fair." An estimated crowd of between 3,000 to 4,000 people is expected to attend this year's event. The community festival, sponsored by the Bethel Lions Club, commemorates the life of American Indian Princess Mollycokett, who lived in Bethel at one time.

A wide range of activities are planned for the day, including a parade up Main Street at 11 a.m., featuring the color guard, Princess Mollycokett, floats, scouts, antique automobiles, fire trucks, horses, Funsters, bands, and the parade is open to anyone. There will be trophies for the floats entered in the parade and participant ribbons will be handed out to everyone else.

Games, rides, food and arts and crafts booths will be set up on the Bethel Common, and booth space is still available. Applications for vendor space may be obtained by calling Del McMillin at 824-2587, or writing to: Bethel Lions Club, P.O. Box 314, Bethel, ME 04217.
